October news update

Lecture Programme Reminder

13th October 2022 at 7:30 pm. Lecture Theatre A407 Boyd Orr Building
Dr. Rebecca Paisley, Exploration Geochemist, Cornish Lithium.

"Lithium in Cornwall: The foundation for a responsible UK battery supply chain"

We will be recording the talk for later viewing but in order to maximise in-person attendance and minimise the technology issues we are not offering a live zoom of the talk. The speaker will be 'on-screen' in the lecture theatre and attendees can interact with the speaker from the lecture theatre.

Geology Bites

Oliver has just posted a short conversation with Anna Fleming, a rock climber and author who developed an interest in the nature and origin of the rocks through her rock-climbing experiences. She has a degree in English literature, and is well equipped to write (and speak) eloquently about her subjective experiences on the rock. It's a bit of a departure from his normal science-based approach.

Geo-Natter

The next Geonatter session is at the Kelvin Hall on Wednesday October 19th 2022 at 13:30 until 15:00. Chat informally about geology, show off your rocks and fossils, ask questions about geology, find out what's happening and perhaps even take part in future events. November dates 2nd, 16th and 30th.

Scottish Fossil Code

NatureScot is seeking views on the updated and refreshed Scottish Fossil Code which is due for relaunch in early 2023. To ensure that the refreshed Code is understandable and caters for all those that have an interest in Scotland's fossil heritage they would appreciate your comments and advice.
